OUR COMMITMENT TO THE COMMUNITY

The Domestic Violence Center of the Santa Clarita Valley's 24-hour hotline has seen a 36 percent increase over the last year. Spanish language group counseling has increased by 115 percent, while individual counseling hours for women, children and batterers have increased 28 percent. Every year in this country, more than five million women are abused and more than 1,200 women are killed by an intimate partner. Homicide is the leading cause of death for women in the workplace and over 500,000 women are stalked every year by an intimate partner. Unfortunately, not only are these numbers growing, but experts are seeing a trend towards more teen abuse, that is, teenagers who are being abused by males in their life, usually a boyfriend or parent. In Santa Clarita, the Domestic Violence Center of the Santa Clarita Valley is responding to this alarming trend with a new program that debuts this fall for high school girls. The Center's new Girls Teen Support Group is funded in part through a grant from the John Gogian Family Foundation.
